Is Your Name Written There?

Have you changed your street address since you entered school?

Have you listed your home address and Columbia address in the registrar's office.

If you are not sure about these things, notify Frank Chambers, University Registrar, Monday morning so your name will be correctly printed in the student and faculty directory.

The whole directory will be turned over to the printers tomorrow morning, so if you desire your name, telephone number, department, Columbia address and home address correctly printed you'd better see the registrar--if you have changed your home since you entered up in school.

Do This Tomorrow SURE.

A CRIPPLE, BUT PROSPEROUS

B. T. White Sells Popcorn to College Girls and Children.

"Most people think a cripple is not much good in the world, but I've managed to make a first rate living since I came to Columbia and saved considerable, too."

B. T. White told of how he came to Columbia over five years ago and started his popcorn and peanut business at Tenth street and Broadway. He bought a wagon from Fred Carroll, who owned several street vendors' wagons, and later bought a more expensive wagon.

"It was a lot of money for me to tie up in wagons," said Mr. White, "but I figured that the women and children would help me out. The college girls, too, were right there when it came to giving me a lift."

Mr. White says that he has been advised to move his wagon nearer the center of the business district, but he feels more at home at the old corner where he has worked so long.

"Why, I'd be lost in any other part of town," he said. "This corner has been my best friend. Besides, the children couldn't get to me so easy if I was down there where the crowds gather."

MORE WORK FOR SHORT COURSE

Several New Subjects Will Be Offered in the Winter Session.

Several new courses will be offered in the short course of the College of Agriculture this year. New work given by the department of animal husbandry will include horse production, sheep production, pork production and follow the course in principles of feeding. The latter course will be given in four sections this year instead of in one as heretofore.

In poultry husbandry, there will be three courses—poultry judging, incubating and brooding. The course in farm poultry management will be repeated the second term. This will make it possible for a student to specialize in poultry husbandry and at the same time take the regular short course.

A new course in judging dairy cattle will be offered for the first time. The department of horticulture is preparing to give special instruction in packing and marketing fruits.

ETCHINGS BY HIGGINS FAVORED

Pictures in Art Exhibit Have Subjects of Interest to Layman.

The etchings that appear to be most popular in the collection on display in the museum of classical archaeology in Academic Hall are the four by Eugene Higgins.

Three of the etchings, "Domestic Scenes," "Slum Girl" and "Inhabitants of the Archways," are subjects from the slums. The domestic scene is represented by a mother, with a child on her lap, seated at a table pouring from a pitcher into a cup held by a child at her knee. The slum girl is a young girl leaning against a dark wall. The central figure of "Inhabitants of the Archways" is a tramp slinking by in the half dusk. The other etching is "A Pastoral." The subject is a shepherd with his goats among the mountains.

YES, THE LIBRARY HAS A BIBLE

But It Hasn't Been Called For for Two Years, Says Assistant.

Tuesday was Columbus Day, and the next day S. W. Hansman, a student in the University, emulated the great explorer to the extent of discovering that the University Library has a Bible. He approached the desk and asked for the book in a hesitating manner, as if he doubted whether the book was there. It was.

The library assistant who waited on Mr. Hansman, however, said that as far as he knew this occasion was the first in two years that the Bible had been called for.

S. in Education in 1913, has resigned his position as principal of the high school at Pullman, Wash., to accept a similar position in Wallace, Idaho. He will also coach the track team. Mr. Breckner was a member of the Missouri relay team and was student president in 1913.
